

Anticipating Our 100th Railway Opening Anniversary

Evolving as a Corporate Group Committed to Meeting Customer Expectations

On April 15, 1910, Keihan Electric Railway began operating as a passenger railway between Temmabashi Station in Osaka and Gojo Station in Kyoto. The Company has since extended its lines to Yodoyabashi in 1963, opened Oto Line in 1989, and opened Nakanoshima Line on October 19, 2008. While continuing to expand our diverse railway network, we have also been engaged in creating pleasant living environments by developing real estate, retail, and leisure business segments, all of which are closely linked to customer lifestyles.

Keihan Electric Railway now looks forward to proudly commemorating the centennial of our Company's founding on April 15, 2010. We are grateful to all who have supported us with their understanding and cooperation over the years, particularly the customers along our lines who have honored us with their continued patronage. As we approach our second century, we are confident our customers will continue to hold us in high regard with growing anticipation for the future. In short, our officers and employees are committed to working together to earn the praise of our customers. We look forward to your ongoing support of our endeavors as we continue to focus on meeting customer expectations.
